Art & Wine Faire "Rocks" the House

The Park Street Art & Wine Faire still proves to be the "Best Event in Alameda" and a hometown tradition in our island city. With a weekend attendance close to 110,000 people, the 27th annual street fair gave people a chance to gather with friends or to catch up with old friends they haven't seen for a year or more. In addition, people enjoyed the variety of arts & crafts, the great music, the festival eats, and the two children's areas.

PSBA would like to thank all who participated in this year's successful Park Street Art & Wine Faire – the people who came to enjoy the Faire, the merchants who got into the spirit of the event, and all of our great volunteers. We would especially like to recognize the awesome organizations that kept the cheer flowing at the beverage booths: Alameda Business Network, Alameda Chamber, Alameda Credit Union, Alameda Eagles #1076,

Alameda Elks Lodge #1015, Alameda Sun, Bank of Alameda, Cerda-Zein Real Estate, Compo-Clay, Gallagher & Lindsey Realtors, Jazzercise, Kiwanis Club of Alameda, Mason Management, Rotary Club of Alameda, US Bank, and Wellguard Insurance.

We'd also like to give a big shout out for Rock Wall Wine Company for being our wine vendor this year. If you didn't get a chance to taste their new wines, you can visit their tasting room at Alameda Point.

Photos of the Park Street Art & Wine Faire can be viewed by going to:

We look forward to our next event... the Park Street Classic Car Show, Saturday, October 8! It's going to be bigger and better than ever.

New Estuary-Crossing Shuttle Improves Connection with Lake Merritt BART

The City of Alameda is pleased to announce the establishment of a new, no-cost shuttle service connecting the west end of Alameda to Oakland/BART. To celebrate this exciting new alternative transportation option, the public is invited to attend an official ribbon cutting ceremony at 10:00 a.m. on Monday, August 15, at the Ralph Appezato Memorial Parkway shuttle stop in front of the College of Alameda. The shuttle service will commence operation on that day.

The "Estuary Crossing Shuttle" service will be available for passengers to board and alight at the College of Alameda's Ralph Appezato Memorial Parkway frontage, and in Oakland on Madison Street near the Lake Merritt BART station and Laney College. The service will operate at 30-minute intervals from 7:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, and can accommodate 24 passengers and 13 bicycles.

The project is funded by a one-year grant from the Bay Area Air Quality Management District and, depending on the success of the shuttle, could be eligible for a second year of funding.

Further information can be found at www.EstuaryXINGshuttle.org.

Time to Re-examine Your Retirement Plans?

As a nation, we appear to be getting nervous about retirement. We aren't sure if we'll have enough money, and we don't know if we'll be able to retire when we had originally planned. That's why you may want to review your financial strategy both before and during retirement.

Before we look at some actions you might take, let's get a sense of how concerned many Americans are about their future:

- Less confidence — The percentage of workers who are “not at all confident” about having enough money for a comfortable retirement is now at 27%, according to the 2011 Retirement Confidence Survey, sponsored by the Employee Benefit Research Institute. This figure is the highest level measured in the 21 years of the Retirement Confidence Survey.
- Later projected retirement age — Back in 1995, over half of those surveyed in a Gallup Poll said they expected to retire when they were under age 65, while about 15% thought they would retire after age 65. But in 2010, the same Gallup Poll showed that just 29% of survey respondents expected to retire before they reached 65, while 34% planned to work beyond 65.

This lowered confidence and the expectation of having to work past 65 are due in part to the Great Recession and the housing market collapse, which combined to reduce the savings of many future retirees. You can't control these types of factors, but you can do a lot to boost your prospects for a comfortable retirement — both before and after you retire.

Before You Retire:

- Estimate your expenses. Try to estimate about how much money you'll need each year of your retirement.
- Contribute to your retirement plans. Put as much as you can afford into your 401(k) or other employer-sponsored retirement plan, such as a 403(b) or 457(b) plan. Each time you get a raise, boost your annual contribution to your retirement plan. Also, try to fully fund your traditional or Roth Individual Retirement Account (IRA) each year.

After You Retire:

- Evaluate your employment prospects. You may have retired from one career, but that doesn't mean you can't work part time, do some consulting or even open your own business. If you think you'd enjoy doing some type of work, the added income can obviously be quite helpful at this stage of your life.
- Decide when to take Social Security. You can start taking Social Security at any time from 62 to 70, but the longer you wait, the bigger your monthly payments. Your decision on when to take Social Security should be based on the amount of income you can expect from a pension or your investment portfolio, plus any income you might receive from employment.
- Determine your withdrawal rate. You'll need to calculate how much you can safely withdraw from your various retirement accounts each year. Your withdrawal rate will depend on several factors, including your lifestyle, your estimated longevity, your other sources of income and the level of inflation. You may need to adjust your withdrawal rate periodically.

These aren't the only factors involved in preparing for, and living in, retirement, but they should give you a good idea of what you need to do to enjoy the lifestyle you've envisioned.
